Information on the Workers obtained from the Accounts for the Manor of Ampthill 1533-1567

M J B Turner, Ampthill & District Archaeology & Local History Society

The Workers

The names of a large number of workers are given in the accounts for works carried out at the Manor of Ampthill. which may be of interest to family historians. There are other accounts for the Manor of Ampthill yet to be located. Those already found and transcribed are given at the end of this paper.

The lists of workers include the first name and surname of the worker, his or her trade or commodity they are dealing with, alternative spellings of their name, their rate of pay per day and where they are from if stated.

Somewhat surprisingly out of all the four hundred or so surnames there were only three Turners, two were blacksmiths and one a supplier of a pulley. There were three Smiths, two of whom were carpenters; and only one a blacksmith. There were two Woodwards and one Wood, all sawyers. There was one Wright a labourer, one Bricklayer who was a bricklayer one Mason who was a labourer, but there were none of the following trade associated surnames:- Carpenter, Tiler, Slater, Sawyer or Carter.
